

Green New Deal

1. A Green New Deal is an attempt to address an existential threat to the whole planet: the climate crisis.
2. A Green New Deal is about tackling this threat at the scale required to adequately address it: nothing short of a national mobilization to transform our entire economy.
3. A Green New Deal is also about working with the rest of the world to solve this problem.
4. The foundation of a Green New Deal is an acknowledgement that the era of fossil fuels is over.
5. A Green New Deal involves a bold and comprehensive program to achieve the agreed target of net-zero carbon emissions before it's too late.
6. A Green New Deal goes way beyond the incremental steps and partial solutions that have been tried for decades without achieving the necessary results.
7. A Green New Deal also avoids the false solutions that don't actually reduce carbon emissions at all: like biomass and biofuels that emit just as much carbon as fossil fuels do.
8. A Green New Deal is not about taking jobs away from people, but is instead about providing millions of decent, well-paid jobs helping to save the planet instead of helping to destroy it.
9. A Green New Deal is about addressing the climate crisis while ensuring that the lives and conditions of the poorest and most vulnerable are substantially improved rather than worsened.
10. It will take trillions of dollars, our best scientists and engineers, and a whole new era of international cooperation and goodwill to implement a Green New Deal.

Nuclear Ban Treaty

1. The Nuclear Ban Treaty is an attempt to address another existential threat to the whole planet: the nuclear nightmare.
2. The Nuclear Ban Treaty is about tackling this threat at the scale required to adequately address it: nothing short of a treaty that bans everything to do with these weapons.
3. The Nuclear Ban Treaty is also about working with the rest of the world to solve this.
4. The foundation of the Nuclear Ban Treaty is an acknowledgement that the era of nuclear weapons is over.
5. The Nuclear Ban Treaty is a bold and comprehensive program to achieve the agreed target of zero nuclear weapons before it's too late.
6. The Nuclear Ban Treaty goes way beyond the incremental steps and partial solutions that have been tried for decades without achieving the necessary results.
7. The Nuclear Ban Treaty also avoids the false solutions that don't actually reduce our dependence on nuclear weapons: like calling for a 'no first use' policy instead of 'no use.'
8. The Nuclear Ban Treaty is not about taking jobs away from people, but is instead about providing millions of decent, well-paid jobs helping to save the planet instead of helping to destroy it.
9. The Nuclear Ban Treaty is about addressing the nuclear nightmare while ensuring that the lives and conditions of the poorest and most vulnerable are substantially improved rather than worsened.
10. Implementing the Nuclear Ban Treaty will release trillions of dollars, and our best scientists and engineers, and kickstart a whole new era of international cooperation and goodwill.
